

Your Next Project can be a Winner!

As an executive, chances are you've been burned by technology at least once in your career. Now that you're contemplating more projects than ever, you realize resources are fewer and expectations are higher. Your next project demands an approach that guarantees quicker, quality outcomes with a substantial return on investment. Your project hinges on a method that effectively manages the broader organizational objectives, financial returns, effective use of resources, and setting and meeting of timeframes.

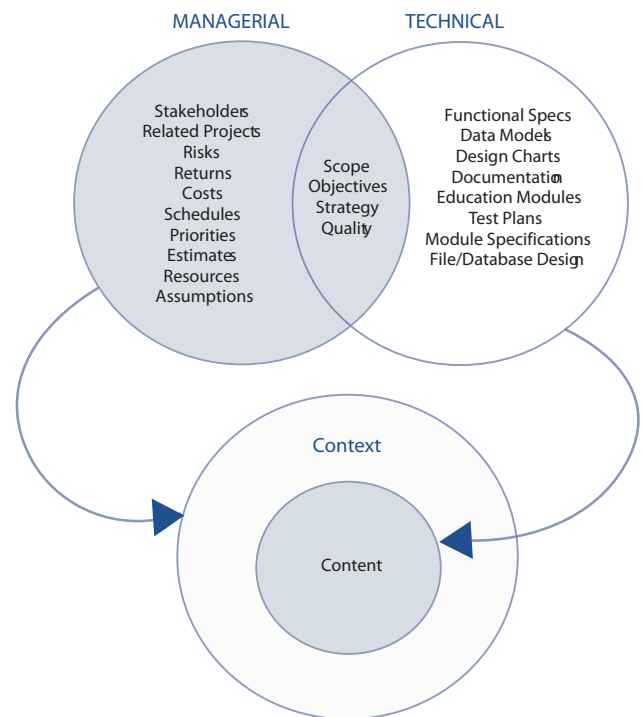

Get Desired Results, On Time

Agile Project Management (APM) is CC Pace's solution to managing today's expectations and risks. APM uses the latest, most effective streamlined tools to define and achieve success for your project. This method keeps the business stakeholders engaged and informed throughout the life of the project.

Because change can't (and shouldn't) be eliminated in the development process, driving down the cost of response is our strategy. Rather than eliminating rework, APM allows us to reduce project cost—all while adhering to excellence in the outcome.

Planning is Work, Not Overhead

Your technology projects must produce a positive business return. Rapid Planning (RAP) sees to it. A RAP session is a unique, intensive and participative approach to planning sessions based on pro-active problem solving, open sharing of information between stakeholders, and trust in the professionalism of all involved.

If you've ever suspected there's a more agile, flexible, intelligent way to manage your projects, you're right. It's Agile Project Management. Consider the outcomes your company needs, then consider CC Pace. We do the job right—the first time.